

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Voting Made Simple – As it should be “VotingMadeSimple.org” offers a quick and easy way to jump into the Presidential race.

BURLINGTON, Vermont, March 4th 2008 – The small software company Mikeware™ has unveiled the website VotingMadeSimple.org. It allows anyone to easily start researching and being part of the Presidential race. In just a minute, one can fill out a short questionnaire and be matched with a Candidate which most closely matches their interests.

Unlike other systems available on the Internet, Voting Made Simple distills the questionnaire down to ten simple issues each with an opposing view point. Therefore, potential voters need only to worry about how they feel on a particular issue in general and not quibble over their overall feeling on some arbitrary scale or ponder the immense sub-points which surround each issue.

“I can’t believe it. I’m not a very political person, but I’m having fun because it’s simple and down-to-earth. Every thing’s already been done for me. Mind you in this case I did all the work behind it...” – Says creator Michael A. Hawker.

About Michael A. Hawker

Michael A. Hawker was born in Montreal, Quebec Canada. He moved to Pennsylvania at a young age and now resides in Vermont and Montreal. He started using a computer at the age of four and started programming computers in the fourth grade. He currently holds a degree in Computer Science with a Minor in Philosophy from McGill University, and he is currently pursuing a Masters in Computer Science there as well. He founded Mikeware™, a software company, in 1996 to create better software and games.

###

Contact Information

Michael A. Hawker

President, Mikeware

press@mikeware.com

Cell: (802) 735-7765

<http://www.votingmadesimple.org/>